

Creativity , courage and friendship

History

Learning about History encourages our children to be curious, to ask questions and compare and contrast, as well as giving them the courage to share their ideas and extend their thinking. They show creativity whilst using their imagination to explore past events and 'putting themselves in someone else's shoes'. Friendship is important in supporting children to understand and value the experiences of others, learning from lessons that have been learned in the past and how the world has moved on as a result.
