What to do

Learn how to challenge – you need to be able to stay calm, ask questions and listen to answers without losing control. Don't be afraid of confrontations, but try and stay away from accusations.

If your child is in trouble with the Police or at school – be ready to challenge obvious signs of unacceptable behaviour – one idea is to make an agreement and have set consequences for misbehaviour.

Listen and be supportive - If a young person is involved, they may not want to talk about it or be scared. Ultimately, you want to be the person your child can confide in and is honest with.

This means you need to be prepared to listen to your worst fears without the situation escalating or becoming abusive. It's important that they know you want to listen, support them and work with them to find solutions.

Don't be afraid to get help - You are not alone and there is always support out there to help you. In addition to the information in this leaflet, your local council or the Citizens' Advice Bureau have specific groups who can assist you.

But you could start by talking to the school, teachers, faith groups and even other parents. On the back page of this leaflet are organisations that can give you more information and access support.

Combating violent crime

Warning signs, practical advice and support for concerned parents and carers.

Sometimes it feels like crime is getting more serious all the time. We see images of youth violence, stabbings and exploitation all the time. No-one would blame you as a parent or caregiver for worrying about what happens to your child, or asking what they could do to stop their child becoming another victim. Here is some guidance to consider, put together by our experienced SOS+ Service team.

Don't blame yourself - Even with good parental support, young people can be attracted into negative associations or habits despite your best efforts.

Have those conversations – Young people frequently tell us that if they were in trouble they would not go to an adult for help. Be that a teacher, parent or someone in authority. Why not? Because they fear they would be judged, that adults wouldn't understand or worse they would receive the punishment. To get around this you are going to have to build real trusted conversations your young person. You need to talk about what you will do if they ask you for help. You need to reassure them that you will not judge them and that you will believe them and do whatever it takes to help them. Then when they approach you, take time out and listen.

It's not just boys that get involved - Many girls may believe that what they're being pressured or coerced to do is 'normal' and acceptable. They might not realise what's happening to them is wrong. They may be afraid of what might happen if they tell anyone and they may believe no one will believe or protect them.

Check out their space – this includes physical spaces such as bedroom and where they hang out but don't forget about the online space. It's wise to know what social media platforms (TikTok, WhatsApp, Instagram, Twitter, Snap Chat &c.) they use and dependant on age and maturity you should have access to their activity. You don't always need the app to have an account - Google search the logins.

Be aware that chat rooms and texts can be used to bully and exploit young people to participate in negative behaviour. Monitor sites and games for inappropriate content – maybe even play the games with them!

Signs and indicators:

Behaviour - Most young people go through a rebellious phase, what's essential is that it does not prolong and that healthy boundaries are maintained and challenged.

Your child's friends – Friends fall out sometimes and children change their interests, but who are your child's friends? When your child goes out, who are they with and what are they doing?

Gang names – Does your child's group of friends have a 'name' and if so, how do they see themselves?

Truancy – Do you check on attendance, are you speaking to teachers, have tutors noticed anything? If kids are not in school the question is, where are they? Some gangs exploit young people by sending them to other areas.

If your child starts to go missing, make sure you challenge them over their whereabouts and if they go missing for periods of 24hrs or more ensure that it is reported and that you get help. If you're in doubt as to what your children are doing in their spare time, ask. If necessary, monitor their activities.

Post codes and unsafe areas - Harder to spot, but some young people align themselves to post codes and therefore have 'no-go' areas. If your child shows reluctance going to any specific areas, ask why, and be ready to ask again.

Unexplained cash or possessions – Has your child bought things they normally couldn't afford? Look out for possession of relatively large sums of money or for expensive items brought home. Be ready to challenge excuses, too.

Signs of bullying/physical injuries – Your child may experience bullying and pressure to join a group. They may have injuries which indicate violence from others or self-harming. Either way, they'll need your support. Make time to listen and encourage them to trust you.

Understanding the music - this can be a bit of a minefield because although music associated with gangs can be threatening, violent and glamourise the myth surrounding the culture it does not guarantee involvement. I

It makes sense to know what your child is listening to and what the music is about, and so to have those conversations about what the lyrics mean before you take any action.
